About ProSys International Ltd

ProSys offers one of the UK and Ireland's largest sole-source ranges of clinical supplies and medical devices for Acute and Secondary care environments. It has a strong, historical reputation in Urology (Secco-FMS), Infectious waste management (AbsorbeZe range) and pressure area care (Offload Bootie, Prevasse Cushion).

ProSys International Limited was founded in 1997 by mechanical and bioengineer Graham Steer B.Sc. (Hons.) A.C.G.I., M.I.Mech.E. Specialising in plastics and material science, the core of the business focussed on innovation of the design and manufacture of medical devices.

Graham developed a range of products to assist in the management of highly infectious bodily fluids in the home and healthcare settings, based upon super-absorbent systems. These revolutionised the fluid solidification capacity and the speed of 'fluid take up'. Graham licensed the designs and material manufacture to international companies. This subsequently led to the development of the Secco Faecal Management System, with the innovative and exclusive inclusion of superabsorbent technology during waste collection.

The company is now privately owned, and Graham still plays an active part in product innovation and design.
